The Gen. Jacob Bailey Monument
Being Set—Exercises of Old
Home Week Underway

The monument to Gen. Jacob Bailey came Thursday and is being placed. The weight is 23,000 pounds, and it will be a fitting tribute to a notable soldier, a worthy citizen and upright man. The markers for the Court and Store House, the first log meeting house and in memory of Col. Thomas Johnson have been erected. The union service at the Methodist church Sunday at 10.30 a. m., were of unusual interest. The house was filled to its limit and no one was disappointed in the sermon delivered by Rev. Joseph E. King of Fort Edward, N. Y., principal of Newbury Seminary from 1848 to 1853. Service was held in the Congregational church at 2.30 p. m., Rev. E. G. French presiding, opening address by Hon. H. W. Bailey. The oration "Ideals of the Early Settlers," delivered by Rev. J. M. Thomas, D.D., president of Middlebury College, was a masterpiece of oratory and information, and held the audience in closest attention. The house was packed, not even standing room left. Two former pastors of the church were present, Rev. John L. Merrill of Reading, Mass., and Rev. William Prentiss of Hartford, Conn. The day was unfavorable, showers were frequent with humid atmosphere. What nature withheld, the people gave, a warm welcome, and the memory of the occasion will be carried through life.

She then returned to the house and notified Mr. Parks who with his haying men started in search. Then Mrs. Parks turned to the telephone and soon ten men had left the hay field and gone to the woods to hunt for the lost woman. After four hours of shouting and hunting she was found by E. A. Morse, near Richard King's farm, about one mile from where she was last seen. During the time she was out, there came up a big shower accompanied by wind and hail. BANKS AND THE INDIVIDUAL

Equalization of the Tax on Money Loaned Strongly Urged in the Republican State Platform

Believing that the individual is entitled to every privilege extended the corporation by law, the Republican State Convention adopted a plank in its platform] that favors the equalizing of the tax on money loaned as between savings institutions and the individual lenders of money.

This plank, enacted into law, would tax all moneys alike. The individual lender and the banks would pay the same tax.

The effect of such a law, it is contended, would be to keep the money of Vermonters invested at home, through the individual, and not loaned outside the state and will help you to buy and develop farms, will aid people of moderate means to own their own homes, and will have an important effect in building up industries in this state.

The plank is clear, concise and to the point. It reads:

We recommend changes in the law that will equalize the tax of individual lenders of money and savings institutions, and urge that as far as practicable the ultimate benefit of such lowered rate be assured the borrower.

We urge the General Assembly to consider the merits of a uniform low rate of taxation of money, loans and credits as a means of increasing the public revenues, State and local, of bringing easier conditions to the borrower, and of stimulating home industry.

This no doubt means something to every reader of this paper.

Burlington, Vt., August 12, 1912.
